Chromadek Plate Adhesive and Removal Disclaimer

Document MS TC 03 | Version 1.1 | 4 November 2026

Important notice before fitting Chromadek plates

Magniscreen Chromadek plates use very high bond adhesive tape to form a strong, long-term bond. Removing a Chromadek plate may damage the surface finish or leave adhesive residue. Damage-free removal cannot be guaranteed.

1 Before fitting

Check that the surface is sound, clean, dry and compatible with the supplied adhesive and any preparation products. Follow the instructions supplied for the Chromadek plate. Do not sand, prime or apply solvents to a frame without checking compatibility and any window-manufacturer requirements. The tape grips on contact, and its bond strength increases over time.

2 Where future removal is important

A suitable neutral-cure silicone may be considered as an alternative to the supplied adhesive tape. Magniscreen cannot guarantee damage-free removal of silicone or any other adhesive.

Tell Magniscreen before ordering or fitting if you would like Chromadek plates supplied without adhesive tape so that you can use an alternative product, such as a suitable neutral-cure silicone.

3 Separating the adhesive bond

Do not pull, twist, lever or prise the Chromadek plate off the frame. For suitable foam adhesive tapes, a cutting line, such as fishing line or dental floss, may be worked through the adhesive layer behind the plate, keeping it clear of the frame finish. Tools can scratch or damage surfaces.

4 Removing residue

Use only a cleaner confirmed as compatible with both the adhesive and the frame finish. A citrus-based adhesive remover may be an option, but do not assume that it or any other remover is safe for every surface. Test on a small, inconspicuous area. Follow the cleaner’s current label and safety data sheet.

5 Damage and customer rights

Magniscreen cannot promise that an existing frame or finish will remain unaffected during Chromadek plate removal. Surface damage caused by removal is not, by itself, evidence of a defect in the screen or adhesive. This notice does not exclude liability where Magniscreen is legally responsible, excuse negligent work or limit any rights under applicable consumer law.
